BITE-FREE ACTIVITIES

From simply being outside to doing activities such as camping or hiking, anyone who spends time outdoors should have ways to prevent insect bites.

Ticks, for example, can be found in forests, meadows, long grass and natural areas, but also city parks. You might even try to escape the buzzing of mosquitoes in your ear by going inside, but you will see them flying around your house looking for that next bite.

Mosquitoes, ticks and other insects may seem like a small inconvenience, but they can be dangerous and deadly to everyone, as they can transmit diseases such as Malaria, Dengue, Zika Chikungunya, Yellow-Fever, and others.

We have developed the shield you need for all-day protection, indoors and outdoors.
